

GG – GRADUATE GEMMOLOGIST (GIA)

The Gemological Institute of America (GIA) has an excellent correspondence program leading to the title of Graduate Gemologist (GG). Students from around the world follow this study plan. However, independent distance learning can be difficult and isolating for some students. The Montreal School of Gemmology (EGM) can help GIA distance students stay motivated, practice with gems and instruments, and make local contacts in the gem and jewellery trade.

Many Montreal based GIA correspondence students training to become GGs also take courses and workshops at EGM, which help them succeed in their studies.

For over 10 years EGM has built and maintained strong ties with the GIA. EGM has been proud to welcome the GIA instructors who have used EGM's facilities, when needed, to offer their practical courses in Montreal.

To date over 150 students have taken GIA courses in Montreal.

All students enrolled in GIA correspondence courses can write their GIA exams at EGM and when completing their 500 stone practical component can use EGM's facilities and instruments.
